British Red Cross

To the Citizens of Napanee!

Again the British Red Cross Society has appealed to Canada for help and the only wonder is that this appeal has not come sooner. Every person in Great Britain is making a great sacrifice for the Empire. How few in Canada outside of the families, whose sons were or are at the front, have felt the pinch? The people of the Motherland not only give freely of their substance, but of their flesh and blood, and the one great comfort in connection with this war is, that the wounded are well cared for. The burden of caring for them falls principally upon the Red Cross Societies. Our Canadian Society is doing splendid work, but the appeal from the British Red Cross comes with a force no one can disregard. When we think of the hundreds of thousands, who have been wounded, fighting for our homes and country, we should be ready and willing to make some real sacrifice in order to provide them with all the comforts that their condition demands. When we reflect upon the mothers and wives, who have given their loved ones for the cause of freedom and justice, we should not hesitate to do our part, especially when the demand upon us is simply a contribution of money. We should bear in mind that the British Red Cross does not discriminate, but looks after Australians, New Zealanders, Canadians and British-born alike. Many a brave lad from our own county is to-day being cared for by the British Red Cross Society. A Citizen's Committee has been organized and a house to house canvas of the town will be made on October 19th. It is expected that every citizen will contribute even more liberally than a year ago and that the canvassers will be greeted with a smile. Make their work as easy for them as you can by having your money ready. Let us show our patriotism and loyalty by the amount of our contributions. In the interest of the cause a public meeting will be held in the town hall on the evening of Tuesday, the 17th, at which a five minutes address will be made, and Mr. Herrington will exhibit a new set of 125 handsome lantern slides, dealing with many phases of the war. No admission will be charged and the public, especially the ladies, are cordially invited.

ALPINE WOODS,

Chairman of Committee.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EXPRESS

Sir:—His worship, the Mayor, in last week's EXPRESS, asks the question, "Have you paid your taxes?" This, to the unfortunate citizens, owning property along streets watered at the town's expense, and then proceeds to answer the question in the negative. Although we have paid our proportion of the cost of street watering up to date, yet, because you are unfortunate enough to have property along watered streets, you must now pay the total cost of street watering for the past three years! Because the law now says that the cost of watering must be borne by the property lying along such streets and not by a general tax on the whole town. Therefore, you are now liable, (and are now called upon) to pay the second time. Thus it would seem that man was made for the law, and not the law for man. Now Sir, the ordinary individual is apt to reason thus: The streets are public property and are used freely by the public, who, in using them, manufacture dust, which is a nuisance and damage to the property lying along them. Surely the cost of keeping the dust in its proper place should be borne by the general public, as far as possible and not, especially on the persons, who suffer the most from its existence, and who are very likely to look on the case as parallel to cramming a potato bug down a gardener's throat, and then sending down a dose of Paris green to kill the bug. It is also likely to create the impression that had the citizens, by their votes last spring, allowed the extra expenditure of $10,000 on streets this year, we would not have been subjected to this, to say the least, peculiar treatment.

Thanking you in advance for calling the attention of our citizens to this imposition,

I remain,

ONE OF THE UNFORTUNATES.

DID NOT WARN CREW.

German "Sub" Fired Thirteen Shots
at British Steamer Strathdene.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Thirteen shots were fired at the British steamship Strathdene, one of the vessels sunk by a German submarine
off Nantucket Sunday, before the 33 members of the crew had taken to their boats, according to Captain Wilson, the Strathdene's commander, who was brought here Monday
with his crew by the Uruguayan
steamer P. L. M., No. 4.

"My ship was attacked without warning," declared Captain Wilson,
after he had given a detailed statement of the incident to the British consul general. "Thirteen shots
were fired before we left the vessel.
None of the shots, however, struck
the ship until we had taken to the boats."

Under instructions from the consul general, Captain Wilson declined to give out further information. Consular officials said Captain Wilson's report first would have to be forwarded to the British ambassador at Washington before they could discuss the sinking of the Strathdene.

Members of the Strathdene's crew
said that after they had pulled away
from their ship, they saw the submarine approach the oil steamer
Christian Knudsen, whose crew
seemed to be getting ready to lower their boats. The submarine then returned and torpedoed the Strath-
dene and again steamed toward the oil ship and apparently replenished
her oil tanks. Several torpedo boats
were in the vicinity, the sailors said,
when the two ships were sunk. Officers of the rescuing ship asserted
the Strathdene's officers told them
that the submarine was made fast to
the tanker for three-quarters of an hour, taking oil, before that vessel
was sunk.

Accounts of the torpedoing of the Strathdene, told on board the P.L.M.
No. 4, by the rescued crew, corroborated
Capt. Wilson's statement that his ship was fired on before the officers and crew got into the boats.

Captain Yates of the P.L.M. No. 4
said Captain Wilson told him that when the submarine came alongside,
eight or ten officers, including Captain Rose of the U-53, boarded the Strathdene.

"Captain Rose ordered him to abandon ship immediately," Captain Yates said Captain Wilson told him.
"The two boats were lowered and
the submarine commander gave instructions for reaching Nantucket Lightship, ordering us to row as fast
as possible. As we pulled away the submarine fired four more shots at her, which struck above the waterline."

The oil steamer just then hove in sight and the submarine headed for her, afterward returning to torpedo
the Strathdene.

Twenty-nine women and 14 children, survivors from the Red Cross
Line steamship Stephano, sunk Sunday by a German submarine off Nantucket, arrived here late Monday
and were taken in charge by representatives of the American Red Cross.

The passengers agreed that 36
shots were fired at the Stephano before she was torpedoed and sunk.
Mrs. Charles W. Bostwick of Hudson, N.Y., who was returning from Nova Scotia, said eight minutes
elapsed between the submarines first
and second shots, then the captain ordered everybody to take to the

BIG BATTLE GOING ON

Russians Have Entered German
Lines at Some Points.

Counter-Attacks Fail Although Delivered with the Strength of Large Reinforcements—Pause in Volhynia—Fearful Slaughter
Marking Offensive in This Region.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 10.—The great battle in Volhynia, east of Vladimir-Volynski, is continuing, the War Office announced Monday, and the Russians have succeeded at some places
in entering the Teutonic lines. The positions taken have been consolidated, the statement adds.

A fresh gain toward Lemberg
from the southeast has been made on the Galician front. The newest Russian advance has been made in the Brzezany district, following repeated
assaults on the Austro-German-Turkish lines. The gains were held against determined counter-attacks delivered
with all the strength of the new forces which von Hindenburg is reported to have sent to this line.

On the front north-east of Lemberg the Russians admit that they have been held in check by the determined resistance of the Teutons.
Heavy counter-attacks have marked
the Austro-German defence of this front. Berlin announces the repulse
of Russian attacks near Wysocke, Dubie, and Zarkow.

News is just beginning to reach
here of the fearful slaughter in Volhynia which has marked the latest Russian offensive in that region. A temporary lull has come to enable
the exhausted troops to recuperate
for fresh efforts.

According to despatches from the front the main assaults of the Russians were made on a front of more than 30 miles, the heaviest blows
falling on the sector from Karytucha to Zubilno. For 48 hours in this region the Russians attacked continuously. German correspondents claim that the Teuton lines held firm despite the unprecedented attacks and an artillery fire which was second in violence not even to that on the Somme.

Italians Win Position.

ROME, Oct. 10.—An Italian success in the Dolomites is reported by the War Office. The Italians captured a strong position on the slopes of Cima di Costabella, consisting of
a trench and shelters of the enemy,
and they took 102 prisoners, a machine gun, some rifles, and ammunition.

The Italians also report that in the Travignolo—Avisio Valley, where fierce battles raged on Tuesday and Wednesday, ending in the repulse of the Austrians, the enemy remained quiet on Thursday, and only artillery actions prevailed. Strong junctions were established by the Italians between their positions on the first and second peaks of Colonel Briccon. They found a great many Austrian dead on the saddle between the two peaks.

AERIAL NAVIGATION.

Rousseau Thought It Might Come, but
the Problem Stumped Him.

A curious little book is an old, old
treatise on aeronautics by Jean Jacques Rousseau, called "Le Nouveau Dedale."

Like Leonardo da Vinci and Cyrano
de Bergerac, Rousseau was haunted
by the dream of aerial navigation. We read in his treatise: "Men walk on the earth, they sail on the water and swim
in it. Is not the air an element, like the others? What business have the birds to shut us out of their premises
while we are made welcome in those of the fishes?"

Rousseau took no stock in any theories propounded by the Darius Greens
of his day. He sifted the matter for himself and thought it involved two problems. First, to find a body lighter than air, so that it would rise. He imagined that sooner or later such a body might present itself. There was no telling.

But what stumped him was his second problem—how to make that obliging body stop rising and how in creation to make it come down. This was too tough a problem for Jean Jacques,
and he wound up his book by admitting it.

For a long time "Le Nouveau De-dale" remained unpublished, appearing only in 1801.

"Improving" Mother Goose.

We all know how far the idea of Mother Goose as an unmoral book has obtained. In a modern abridged edition "There was an old woman who lived in a shoe" ends, "She gave them
some broth and plenty of bread and kissed them all fondly and sent them
to bed."

Why should the modern child be brought up with the wholly unnatural
situation of the heavily burdened
mother who behaves just as if nothing unusual had occurred? Their literary taste will be ruined if pursued on these lines. "Spanked them all soundly and sent them to bed" is the only possible
logical course.—Atlantic Monthly.

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How
Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health :—

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much
with female weakness that I could not

do my own work,
had to hire it done.
I heard so much
about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found
it to be all you claim. Now I feel as well as ever I did and
am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering

from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until
she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic
and invigorator of the female organism.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice,—it will be confidential.

A Statesman's Queer Ambition.

The great Lord Grey had an ambition
far above politics. He passed the reform bill, but that did not satisfy his soul. There was talk of Tagliani, and Grey said quite earnestly, "What would I give to dance as well as she!" The statesman who had been prime minister and had left an indelible mark on the history of his country was envious
of an opera dancer!—London Saturday Review.

Father Time.

Time waits for no man—be's goin'
jes' a-skimmin', an' he'd never make
the journey if he waited for the women. Don't stop for sigh or song—be's
stronger than the strong; to gloom
time or glory he's a-goin' right along!

The Attraction.

She—So you are engaged to Miss Baggs. I'm sure I can't see anything attractive about that woman. He—Neither can I see it, but it's in the bank, all right.

He lives in fame who died in virtue
cause.—Shakespeare.

The Stores Department of the British Red Cross is an institution in itself. There is nothing required for the equipment of a hospital or the comfort of a sick or wounded sailor or soldier that is not available. The remarkable thing is that these supplies are available, not only for Red Cross hospitals, but wherever there is need—in A. M. C. hospitals, hospital trains and ships, ambulances, rest stations; and not only for British troops, but for those of the Allies as well. Millions of dollars have been spent in this department, and hundreds of thousands of workers have given their services voluntarily to make possible this all-important branch of the work. Some of the materials supplied are: chloroform, X-ray outfits, tooth brushes, soap, shirts, blankets, fresh eggs and milk, kitchen equipment, fodder, boilers, ice machines, mosquito netting.

Mrs. Harshaw,
Hillcrest.

Napanee, Ont.

Dear Madam:—I enclose extra copies of our statement and Xmas appeal. Will you be kind enough to address one of each to the Editors of your local papers, as it would be a great help to us if some of the Canadian papers would publish this. We shall be grateful if you can forward this for us.

Yours faithfully,
MARY PLUMMER,
Capt. C.F.C.C.

AN APPEAL FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NAPANEE EXPRESS:

Dear Sir:—I write to ask your help with our Xmas fund. We received last year from the friends of our soldiers, sufficient money to send a small Xmas gift to every man at the front. The letters received in return show that they gave an amount of pleasure bearing no relation to their value; the little price for each man with its evidence of thought and care and its Xmas greeting was universally appreciated and we wish to repeat the gift this year.

It is to be expected that Xmas gifts will be sent to many units from their home towns and to many individual soldiers by their personal friends. We will willingly and gladly take charge of and forward these gifts or attend to the purchase and despatch of special gifts for which money is sent. But we wish in addition to send one little gift to every man at the front so that no one may lack at Xmas greeting. It must be remembered that some units are drawn from all over Canada and rarely receive comforts from home as do those who belong to one place; also the battalions that are broken up here are drafted into so many and varied units at the front that it is impossible to send to them as a whole. Only a general distribution will ensure that no one is overlooked.

We are asking for $10,000 for this purpose as we shall require at least 100,000 parcels. We shall send whatever we can buy to best advantage; a handkerchief, some good chocolate or cigarettes, a Xmas card, etc. Our kind friends in Folkestone will again undertake to make up the parcels, one for each soldier. The purchase, the packing and the transportation all take time and it is necessary that the money should be in our hands early in November.

Please help us with this if it is at all possible.

Your faithfully,
MARY PLUMMER.

Those desiring to respond to above appeal, kindly send their donations to Miss Edna Richardson, treasurer "U. E. Loyalist" Chapter, who will forward same direct to the Canadian Field Comforts Commission in England.

Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross Work

Through the "U. E. Loyalist" Chapter, I.O.D.E.

Within the past week two splendid cases of hospital supplies of all sorts have been forwarded for the little hospitals of Brittany. Our workers are greatly pleased, and feel much satisfaction in being able to assist in responding to the very urgent appeals that have been received from our splendid French ally. Indeed, we are only beginning to appreciate how great is our debt to her.

The committee has several times received donations of chocolate from Mrs. W. A. Steacy, which is one of the delicacies most appreciated by the men at the front. Last week, we were the recipients of two very generous packages from Mrs. Steacy, and we wish to express to her our very sincere thanks for her generosity.

We have also to thank sincerely, other friends for generous and excellent donations of clothing for the French, Belgian and Serbian refugees.

Two of these friends have previously contributed, to this appeal on more than one occasion, the other is new, but none the less valued contributor.

The shipping of the cases before mentioned, has pretty well denuded the supply of made-up-goods, therefore, we urge our workers to labour energetically to supplement what has been sent away. There is lots of work for willing workers.

As has before been pointed out, if you cannot yourself come to the work-room for any reason, send for the work, which will be gladly furnished.

The attention of the members of the Chapter and Committee, as well as the public generally, is called to the notice in another column of Mrs. Charles G. Henshaw's (Hon.-Capt. C.E.F.) illustrated lecture on October 23rd. Keep that evening free, it will be worth while!

Our work-room is open on Thursday and Saturday afternoons. Come and help in the various branches of our good work.

EDITING SHAKESPEARE.

Nicholas Rowe, Poet Laureate, Was the First to Attempt It.

The first folio was printed partly from the earlier quartos and partly from manuscript copies in the hands of players. It did not have the careful editing that so important a work should have had, but it preserved from destruction a number of the plays that had not appeared in quarto form.

Nicholas Rowe, poet laureate and dramatist, in his edition of 1709 made the first attempt to edit Shakespeare in the modern sense. He modernized spelling, punctuation and grammar, added lists of dramatis personae and divided the acts and scenes properly.

the first attempt to edit Shakespeare in the modern sense. He modernized spelling, punctuation and grammar, added lists of dramatis personae and divided the acts and scenes properly. Since his time editors have been busily engaged in corrections and emendations.

Alexander Pope, the second editor, issued his Shakespeare in 1723, and this was followed in 1733 by Lewis Theobald's edition, whose bitter attack upon Pope in "Shakespeare Restored" led to the latter's making Theobald the dull and pedantic hero of his "Dunciad." The handsome edition by Sir Thomas Hanmer appeared in 1744 and William Warburton's in 1747. Dr. Samuel Johnson's edition was published in 1765. Then came Edward Capell's in 1767-68, George Steevens' in 1773, Joseph Rann's in 1786-94 and Edward Malone's in 1790.

Wise Boy.

"I hope you didn't ask for a second helping of pie when you were at Mrs. Smith's house," said Johnny's mother. "No'm, I didn't," said Johnny. "I just asked her for the recipe, so you could make some pie just like it, and then she gave me another piece without my asking for it."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Not to Be Pitied.

Pat (to Mike)—I got a letter from a friend.

Mike—Yes?

Pat—He says: "Every rib's gone. I've only one shoulder, and I expect my legs will be gone by the time you get this letter."

Mike—Poor fellow! Is he in a hospital in France?

Pat—No; he's in a butcher's shop.—Exchange.

Mexican Beauties.

The most beautiful women in the world are said by experienced and observant travelers to be the Indian women of the isthmus of Tehuantepec, which lies just north of Yucatan, in Mexico. They add to their picturesque attractiveness by wearing whatever fortune they may possess in the form of gold coins strung about the arms and neck.

The Very Idea!

Mr. Woggs—I'm through with old man Bump. I told him we are going to name our baby after some great personage and asked him for a suggestion. Mrs. Woggs—What did he say? Mr. Woggs—He said, "Name it after ours."

Settled.

"What profession do you think your boy Josh will choose?"

"Law," replied Farmer Cornrossel. "Josh kin talk louder an' longer when he's got the wrong side of an argument than anybody I ever heard."—Washington Star.

Dressing Station, Firing Line—Official Film, "Battle of the Somme."

An urgent call for help again goes forth from the Motherland's mighty life-saving agency—the British Red Cross. The Empire is called upon to give greatly, give lovingly, give quickly, that the sick, wounded and suffering on all the battle fronts may not languish and perish in their hours of deepest need.

Here is a great work in which all can share. The Joint War Committee of the British Red Cross Society and Order of St. John is the only institution which carries voluntary aid to the sick and wounded of the British forces on land and sea in every region of the war. Thousands of lives of our bravest and best are saved through this splendid work. YOUR gift may save a life. Isn't it worth doing? It is. GIVE!

The Red Cross looks after the transportation of sick and wounded—it equips thousands of hospitals, rest and convalescent homes, it supplies countless requisites for hospital work, clothing and other comforts. Over 2,000 Red Cross Motor Ambulances are at work on the various fronts, while "rest stations," hospital trains, steamers and launches, food for prisoners, books, special work for the blind, etc., etc., are a few, only, of Red Cross activities.

The Sick and Wounded
Call For Your Help
Give on October 19th

Ontario's princely gift in 1915 of $1,514,000 rang, a clarion mercy call, throughout the Empire. The British Red Cross were grateful beyond measure, and their appeal through Lord Lansdowne, President, now comes to us as to friends who sympathize and help. The need is greater to-day than a year ago—it is ever growing. Will Ontario do less than she did last year? No! GIVE—give a day's pay, give all you can, GIVE.

Your gift will go entirely to the British Red Cross, where, again, through much voluntary work, the working expenses are cut down to only 2% of the total revenue. Thus, if you give $10, actually $9.77½ goes to the healing and saving of some stricken hero. The expenses of the Ontario Committee, advertising, printing, etc., are being met entirely by the Provincial Government.

Premier Hearst Has Seen the Work

"My visit to England and France has aroused deeper appreciation than ever of the splendid work of the Red Cross. It deserves every support, and I trust the people of Ontario will respond with their usual generosity to the British Red Cross Appeal for October 19th."

HON. W. H. HEARST,
Prime Minister of Ontario.

Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., Brings a Red Cross Message

"I bring a message of cheer to those who have relatives at the front and who fear they may be wounded. I believe everything human skill can do, that human care and sympathy can provide, is being done and provided each day and each night throughout the year by the Army Medical Corps and the Red Cross. It is a perfect marvel of efficiency."

MR. N. W. ROWELL, K.C.,
Leader of the Opposition.

He gives twice who gives quickly.
Your help is needed NOW!

The Motherland's only direct appeal to us for help in this great war is her great Red Cross mercy work. Ontario's response must and will be quick and generous. Give through the Treasurer of your Local Committee—or, send your subscription to the Clerk of your municipality—or, make it payable to Hon. T. W. McGarry, Treasurer British Red Cross Fund for Ontario, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

ONTARIO FEDERATION

Every birthday celebration of the Liberal Club Federation is better than the preceding and its fourth birthday celebrated in London on October the 11th was the best yet. The afternoon session, as usual, was given up to business of the federation with Mr. G. D. Conant of Oshawa, the President, in the chair, with Mr. B. H. McCreath of Toronto, the Secretary of the federation with him. The delegates who came from all parts of the province were welcomed by Mr. Sidney Little, President of the London Liberal Club. In addition to a discussion of detailed business of the federation itself, there were most interesting discussions on a number of live Canadian and Ontario public problems, including:—"Agriculture," in such aspects as rural credits, co-operation and agricultural education; "labor" under such headings as the cost of living, the relation of labor and capital and forms of state insurance covering unemployment and old age; "citizenship" under which were discussed such questions as graft and the patronage system and "returned soldiers", dealt with ably under such heads as pensions, vocational training for the disabled and other aspects of the problem.

In the evening, at an exceptionally large banquet which occupied every square foot of the Winter Gardens, Sir Wilfred Laurier, Mr. N. W. Rowell and Premier Norris of Manitoba were the principal speakers. These leaders were introduced by young members of the federation and throughout the day the accomplishments and further aims of the federation were kept well to the fore.

MR. ROWELL'S TRIP.

Mr. Rowell has been giving some further accounts of his European trip: first for the Woodstock Canadian Club where he dealt with "The Dominions and the War" and told of his visit to the Australian, New Zealand and South African troops in Europe. At a meeting organized in his honor by the Woman's Liberal Association of Toronto he told of his visit to Admiral Beatty's fleet and of being on board the "Lion" and "Tiger" and other cruisers made famous in the present war.

MR. HEARST'S RETURN.

The Hon. Mr. Hearst accompanied by Dr. Pyne is back from Europe and it is going to be very interesting to see what developments will follow. During his absence there have been persistent rumors that Mr. Hearst is to go on the Bench and that the Conservative Party is going to try to see if another change of leadership will not bolster up its fortunes which, according to public opinion as expressed everywhere in the province seem to be at a very low ebb. It is doubtful if a change would do any good, but it is going to be interesting to watch what will happen.

A TALE of RED ROSES

By
GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER

"Outside of that and drying the tears of the widows and orphans, what do you propose to accomplish by it?" he persisted in like vein. "If I didn't know you were above spite-work I should think that you had it in for the street car interests."

Again the senator looked at him with a puzzled air, then he turned to Sledge. "Doesn't he know anything?" he queried.

"Naw!" rumbled Sledge.

"I see," answered Allerton coolly. "I supposed you all knew that before the bill was passed it would be amended to conserve the important financial interests."

Marley pondered that statement awhile, and then he laughed.

"Of course," he said. "It's only political claptrap, intended to make the voter think you are eternally on the job in his interests."

"I wouldn't put it in exactly that way," soberly reproved Allerton, justly offended by this coarse method of impugning his motives.

"I apologize," said Marley. "I should have said 'the bill displays that you constantly have the interests of your constituents at heart.' We were rather exercised about it, but we should not have been, for in your long service for the public I do not think you have ever promoted or fostered any legislation which would be destructive of capital."

"Certainly not," agreed Allerton, who never let down his pose in the presence of a man who had not proved his right to sit within the sacred circle. "Without the proper and legitimate fostering of enterprises requiring extensive financial support there can be no national prosperity."

"That's sound enough doctrine," commended Marley. "What are the amendments which are to soften the blow?"

With kindly patience the senator explained to him the amendments, one by one, being careless enough, however, not to mention the fifty year franchise clause.

At the end of an hour Marley, much relieved in his mind, took his departure, regretting that Sledge was not ready to accompany him.

"It's strange how easily a man in control of important investments takes fright," he acknowledged, as he arose to go. "We can be put on the run with a penny's worth of firecrackers. Not long ago our friend Sledge, here, had me stampeded, but I checkmated

"You remind me of that good old standard story of the man who was arrested for some trifling offense. He sent for his friend and explained the circumstances. 'Why, it's confounded nonsense!' exclaimed the friend, holding the bars and looking through the grating of the cell door. 'No policeman on earth can throw you into jail for that.'"

"Why, he was in jail at that very minute," protested Fern.

"I think that's supposed to be the point of the story," guessed Molly. "Of what is it apropos, Bert?"

"Of the impossibility of building an amusement park on Lincoln road," he answered. "They're digging a lake out there. They've erected the scaffolding of a roller coaster. They've built a big workshed, which is later to be turned into a Tannenbaum hall, which just now is stacked with gaudy parts of a three story merry-go-round. It may be utterly impossible for them to build an amusement park out there, but they're doing it."

Molly glanced quickly at her father. He motioned that his untouched soup might be taken away and toyed in nervous embarrassment with an almond.

"I've already done it," he half shamefacedly explained.

"Sold your stock?" she eagerly inquired.

"Not quite," he hesitated. "I did, however, stop at the telegraph office on my way back from Allerton's this morning, and I wired the people who have been after my stock to name their best offer."

"Good!" she responded. "Will you take it, whatever it is?"

"I can't bind myself to that," he replied. "I must confess, however, that whatever the offer is, I shall be tempted."

"Allerton must have given you very little satisfaction about that bill," surmised Bert.

"Quite the contrary," stated Marley. "The bill is absolutely harmless. It is only a bit of political flapdoodle, intended to convince the voters of the state that Allerton is constantly on the job."

"Something must have happened to make you change your mind so quickly," pondered Molly. "Whatever it was I'm glad of it. You must have met Sledge," and she giggled.

"Sledge must have smiled at him," laughed Bert, keeping up the joke.

"I have excellent reasons," Marley

not, but that he would let her know as soon as he had done so.

She wandered about the house, quite ill at ease; then, unable to content herself, suggested to Fern that they make ready for a drive. When they were ready she hesitated a moment or two in front of the telephone, but conquered that temptation. Instead, she made their first stop at her father's office, and, with a curious degree of consideration, waited in the little red reception room to be announced. She was told to come right in, and found Bert with her father.

Marley silently handed her a telegram. It read:

Our Mr. Coldman will see you in two weeks from today.

"Two weeks," she worried. "Can't you possibly hurry them up?"

Marley handed her another telegram: Impossible to arrange earlier date.

"Hunt's resignation was in my mail this morning," stated Marley, with forced quietness. "He has taken a position as secretary with Sledge's company, and I suppose half my office force will follow him."

"Two weeks," speculated Bert, then he added impatiently: "Confound it, Marley! I'm in a pretty pickle if we can't clear our skirts of this thing! I borrowed the money to buy up Moodson's stock from some friends of mine, and on my unsupported note. To lose would mean the absolute end of my social standing, here or anywhere."

"We'll see that you get yours first," offered Marley, whose respect for his son-in-law to be was only superficial.

"I didn't mean to urge my personal claims above yours," Bert hedged, his impatience, however, only slightly modified. "The fundamental fact is that we must gain time."

"We ought to figure a con he suggested.

Marley considered that carefully. He was beginning that he really needed cautioning with Sledge.

"One of us might be gobbled up," sagely concluded. "As I understand you own 75 per cent of the company, while I only hold a bare majority of the old one. It would be possible that in a consolidation I still have control."

"We'd have to pool our either one to hold it," agreed Marley.

Marley looked at him won "I don't quite understand that to you in this," he puzzledly, Mr. Sledge, I'd have to advantage before I could come to matter."

"There ain't any," Sledge said. "I want to protect you if you all right. Molly was just over." "Yes; she said she was going," replied Marley, clutching at the straw.

"I thought she'd get enough," Sledge, and he chuckled. "Smart girl."

to go. "We can be put on the run with a penny's worth of firecrackers. Not long ago our friend Sledge, here, had me stampeded, but I checkmated the old villain. As a matter of fact, the only result of his campaign against me was to put me in control of my own company, and now, I fancy, I have the thing so well tied up that I can't be hurt. I beat you at your own game, eh, Sledge?" and he chuckled down at his defeated oppressor with forgiving triumph.

Sledge looked up at him and smiled. His thick lips parted, displaying his teeth. The under side of his upper lip showed a sharp roll of vivid scarlet, and his cold gray eyes combined to give that facial distortion an expression of malignity startling even to Allerton, who knew the man even better than Tom Bendix.

Marley was conscious of that strange sensation which those who had run foul of Sledge had described as an actual physical chill, like the sudden opening of a window to the cold rain, and the smile upon his own face froze. He was conscious that his lips were still in the contour which his bragging chuckle had given them, and he felt the embarrassed awkwardness in restoring his features to their normal expression, which a man does who has committed some atrocious social blunder.

The horror and the menace and the malignity of that smile increased upon him as he drove into the city. In front of the telegraph office he abruptly stopped, and hurrying in sent this message to his up state syndicate:

Wire best offer controlling interest.

Bert Glider, a necessary adjunct to the Sunday dinner, came just in time to sit down at the table with the family, and he was so preoccupied that Molly was half vexed with him.

"Now, who has won part of your marbles?" she chided him, attempting to conceal her annoyance with him under the guise of gay raillery.

"Bert already looks like a married man," laughed Fern. "I'd be frightened half to death, Molly. Think what he'll look like at a breakfast on the first of each month."

"He'll never see the next bill," declared Molly. "I intend to begin with alimony."

"I hope I can pay it," responded Bert, catching the all too jovial spirit of the assemblage and pretending to gaiety himself. "I think my first step toward making a living, however, will be to move out of this state where I can buy and sell a piece of property without asking permission of some alderman or ward wad."

"I think we'll all go," suggested Marley, who had been looking studiously into his soup. "What has happened to worry you, Bert?"

"Since Sledge smiled?" queried that neatly mustached young man in order to head him off from that reproach. "I think I have good cause this time. I took a drive out Lincoln road this morning, and they're going ahead with their amusement park project."

"Impossible," asserted Marley, striding across his outraged dignity. "While the Blue City Street Railway company has a Lincoln road franchise which would prevent our competitors from obtaining one. It has not announced any intention of building in that direction and will not do so."

Bert laughed quite without mirth.

Sledge, and she giggled.

"Sledge must have smiled at him," laughed Bert, keeping up the joke.

"I have excellent reasons," Marley concluded, with becoming business gravity. "The future of street railway investment in this city is too uncertain."

"Father," said Molly suddenly in the midst of the silence which followed. "if Mr. Sledge finds you have sent that telegram he will do whatever he is going to do before you can turn around."

"He'll have to move quickly," answered her father with a superior smile, his self approbation returning on the slightest provocation. "I sent my people that telegram today so they would have it the first thing Monday morning. They were very eager while they were here to acquire possession, and I shall doubtless hear from them by 10 o'clock."

"I wish I could sleep until 10 and when I wake up find that it's all right," Molly worried. "If you and Bert are not entirely out of all business deals in this town by our wedding day Sledge will see to it, if he has to move heaven and earth to accomplish it, that we none of us have a dollar, and by that I mean absolute pauperism in the best and most thoroughly melodramatic sense."

"He has the most absurd way of making love," commented Fern. "It's like the old cave dweller plan of killing off the family, batting the fair maid in the head with a club and letting her wake up in her new home."

"Not Sledge. He does his lovemaking with red roses," laughed Molly. "tons and tons of them. This is a different proposition. He has reduced everything in life to dollars and cents, and he thinks that if he can only break Bert and father there'll be no wedding bells for us. Bert and I will each be compelled to seek a more lucrative match."

She glanced smilingly at Bert and surprised on his face a curious expression, which plunged her into deep and not overly pleasant thought.

"He'd have bluffed me long ago," confessed Fern. "I'd have been so scared to death that by this time I'd be sending out afternoon tea invitations on his business stationery."

"You spiritless wretch!" chided Molly.

"It might not be so bad, after all," returned Fern, persisting, now that she had started, in revealing the entire depth of her depravity. "I suppose I ought to be ashamed to acknowledge it, but I like Sledge."

"You may pack up your things and go home," laughed Molly, not really blaming her for the sentiment, however. "You're positively hopeless, Fern."

"All right," insisted Fern. "I don't think there'd be any more fun than taming and managing a big brute like him."

"Throw her out," begged Bert. "She's dangerous!"

CHAPTER XIII.

Molly's Anxiety Well Founded.

MOLLY'S anxiety was by no means feigned, for the next morning, at 10 o'clock, she called up her father at his office and asked him if he had received an answer to his telegram. In rather a worried tone he replied that he had

claims above yours," Bert hedged, his impatience, however, only slightly modified. "The fundamental fact is that we must gain time."

"I don't see how unless Molly marries Sledge," suggested her father, with a laugh.

Molly started to laugh also, but found Bert looking at her speculatively.

"She doesn't need go that far," he mused.

Molly looked at him in sharp incredulity for a moment; then, without a word, she turned to leave the room.

"Where are you going?" asked her father.

"To see Sledge," she responded. "I think you told me that he is always at the bank between 11 and 12 in the morning."

"Molly," commanded Bert sharply, recalled to his senses by her bearing. "you mustn't see him. I forbid it."

"I am taking your advice, but I refuse to take your orders," she calmly informed him, surprised to find in herself an inclination to giggle over her use of that splendidly ringing remark. "Molly will shield you from all harm," she added, and she was snickering when she rejoined Fern.

"What's the joke?" asked that young lady. "I've been dying all morning to hear somebody giggle."

"You're to chaperon me while I go over and make love to Sledge," Molly gayly informed her.

"You're not really," protested Fern.

"I am really," retorted Molly, her eyes flashing a trifle more than a mere jest would seem to warrant. "I must, Fern. I plunged both father and Bert into this trouble, and Bert seems to think it's up to yours truly Molly to fool Sledge along until they have time to get out of it. Besides that, it's a sort of a game between Sledge and myself, and I'm not going to have that big duffer win it."

"This is too delightful for anything," applauded Fern. "I'm perfectly mad about it, Molly. I hope Sledge is in."

Sledge was in. He was closeted with Senator Allerton and Governor Waver on a most important conference, one involving the welfare and prosperity of half the voters in the state; but, nevertheless, he promptly stifled his conscience and allowed the interests of the sovereign people to suffer when Davis whispered in his ear that Molly Marley wanted to see him.

"Bring her right in," said Sledge. "Men, you'll have to go. It's a lady, and he opened the rear door for them."

"Just one moment," parleyed Governor Waver, his hand on the door-knob. "I'm returning to the capital this afternoon, and"—

"I'll see you up there," interrupted Sledge, pushing the door and the governor with it.

"By the way, my coat," called the senator from the rear corridor.

The knob of the other door rattled. "All right," grunted Sledge, closing them out in the draft just as Molly and Fern came in. "Hello, girls!" said Sledge. "Sit down. Excuse me a minute till I poke a guy's Benny out to him."

Sledge walked into Marley's office with his parlor smile, the recently outlived one which belonged of right to the red rose he wore, and he sat down before he began to speak. His usual method was to deliver his messages

"Yes; she is," assented Marley, deriding just how much she might make such a remarkable Sledge. "We consolidate after the amended Sledge. "We get now."

Sledge.

He turned to go when, in the adjoining window, he caught sight of a little, low, colonial coupe, with seating capacity for three. It was of an exquisitely beautiful shape, with small,
latticed window panes and dainty lace curtains. He walked slowly toward it, his habitually cold gray eyes brightening, and as he stood before it he thrust his hands deep in his pockets
and positively laughed aloud.

"That's our newest ladies' car," explained the salesman, following him.
"The women are crazy about them.
Self starting, electric lights inside,
shopping flaps everywhere, adjustable
satin seat coverings and all the latest boudoir improvements."

Sledge scarcely heard him. He was still laughing. Nothing he had ever seen had struck him so humorously as
the "cuteness" of this car.

"It's swell!" he chuckled. "Got a red one?"

"No, they're only made in black,"
the salesman told him. "The color effects are obtained by the cushion coverings and silk curtains."

"Put red ones in this. Got another one?"

"There's one just being set up in the shop," stated the overjoyed salesman.

"It's an order."

"Make that one blue."

"Do you want them this afternoon?"
asked the clerk, figuring that it was worth while to put off the other customer.

"Sure!" said Sledge. "Right away."

"I'll get busy immediately," promised
the salesman, delirious with happiness.

"Where do they go?"

"Molly Marley gets the red one. The blue one's for her friend Fern. Nix on who sent 'em."

"They'll want to know," the salesman insisted.

"Aw, tell 'em Frank Marley."

Just across the street was the largest jewelry shop in town, and the display
in its windows gave him an idea. He strode in, asked for the proprietor and got him.

"I want a rock that weighs about a pound," he stated.

"A diamond? Yes, Mr. Sledge. Something for an emblem?"

"Naw! Lady's ring—solitaire."

"We have some beauties," bragged
the jeweler, immediately aglow with enthusiasm. "Here is a nice little three carat stone which is flawless and perfectly cut."

"Is this the best you got?" inquired
Sledge, looking into the case.

"We have some larger ones unset,
but they are not usually mounted in
ladies' rings," responded the jeweler,
struggling between his artistic con-
science and his commercialism.

"Let's see 'em."

Reverently the jeweler produced from his safe a covered and locked tray, in which on white velvet reposed a dozen
sparkling white stones.

Sledge poked a stuffy forefinger at
the largest one.

"Is this one right?" he wanted to know.

"It's a very good stone," the jeweler
told him.

"The next one to it, however, though
a trifle smaller, is of much finer quality. In fact, we have not one in the shop of any size which I consider so perfect as this one. It's worth $500
more than the large one."

CHAPTER XIV.

Molly Insists on Protecting Bert.

BERT GLIDER strode through the Marley gate and trod on the Marley porch and punched the Marley doorbell in a fine condition of manly indignation, and he demanded of the emaciated butler with the intellectual brow that Molly Marley be brought into his presence at once. He waited in the library while the butler went upstairs with that hasty message, and it was no comfort to his soul whatsoever to hear the girls devoting painstaking attention to an apparently endless job of giggling.

With scant consideration for the importance of the occasion, Molly, her face flushed and her eyes glistening with moisture from her recent earnest efforts, came down when she was ready, and she was still tittering, while Fern, upstairs, could be heard in the throes of frantic laughter.

"Hello, Bert," laughed Molly, holding her hand to her jaw, and she sat down weakly. "What's the mad rush?"

"What did you say to Sledge?" he sternly demanded.

Her most immediate reply to that was another half hysterical outburst.

"I'm not quite sure," she giggled. "Fern and I have just been trying to recall it all, but we can only remember the funniest things."

"You've made a fool of him and of me!" charged Bert notly.

"We don't deserve any credit for that," sneekered Molly. "It's so easy."

"The man has taken too much for granted," went on Bert, unsoftened by all this hilarity and, indeed, made only more indignant by it. "From what your father says, Sledge seems to believe that our engagement is off and that he has been practically accepted."

Molly put her hand over her mouth to suppress a shriek and, running out into the hall, called Fern. The girls met halfway up the stairway, where Molly explained the glad news, and Bert, stalking stolidly out there, found them holding to the balustrade in order that their enjoyment of Sledge's obtuse understanding might not tumble them down the steps. He strode back into the library and barked his shin on a rocker. Molly returned to him presently for more.

"I've been missing my red roses," she confessed. "Now I suppose I'll get some more. What else does he think?"

"Heaven knows," snapped Bert. "He says he's going to the theater with you tonight. Is that correct?"

Molly gleefully nodded her head.

"Did you forget that you were going to the club dance with me?" he indignantly went on, feeling like shaking her.

This time Molly shook her head, her eyes gleaming with devilment, and from Fern, still on the stairway, there arose a wild peal.

Bert closed the library doors.

"I forbid it," he commanded.

The change in Molly was so abrupt that it startled him into barking his other shin. First of all she threw open the library doors, knowing, however, that Fern by this time was back in the boudoir.

"You may do your forbidding to Mr Sledge," she told him, with blazing eyes. "You were thoughtful enough to consider seriously sending me to him, and now whatever follows is up to me. I am going to the theater tonight with Mr. Sledge."

"Molly, Molly, Molly!" shrieked Fern, half running and half bumping down the stairs. "Run to the window, quick, and see the parade! O-o-o-oh! It's coming here!"

Molly laid aside her just indignation for a moment, feeling intuitively that a Sledge miracle was some place in the neighborhood, and glanced out of the window, as Fern, gurgling incoherently, flashed by on her way to the door.

Up the winding driveway, one following the other, were two of the most beautiful little colonial coupes in the world, such cars as would make any girl go stark howling mad with ecstasy. They were exactly alike, except that the one in front was hung with lace and filmy red silk curtains, and the other had blue with its fluffy white. Both the cars were empty, ex-almost directly and the girls scattered away from the door as the chauffeur of the red car who was the gentlemanly salesman in disguise, dismounted and came slowly up to the door.

They waited in the library with the frowning and bewildered Bert while the thin butler with the tall brow answered the bell, and they distinctly heard the chauffeur ask for Miss Marley and Miss Burbank. They waited in half frightened decorum while the thin butler solemnly brought that message, and then, with no more trace of excitement than if they had been dragged away from a tiresome French lesson, they walked sedately into the hall.

"Miss Marley?" observed that person, nodding to the right girl. "I have the pleasure of bringing out a very beautiful little gift to yourself and Miss Burbank," and here he nodded to the other young lady, who was holding her toes to the floor by gripping them. "The red lined one is for Miss Marley and the blue one for Miss Burbank."

"I said the blue one was mine!" half shrieked Fern, unable to contain herself any longer. "I want to ride in it—now!"

STYLE TIPS.

One Is Rows of Silk Stitching Used as Trimming.

Just one whisper today about the new modes for fall. Paris openings are over, and the autumn styles are pretty well settled—the Paris styles, that is. American women do not always abide by these styles.

They look over the new modes and select those that appeal to them most, discarding others, and presently the selected modes appear with miraculous swiftness in the shops for everybody to buy. But there are two or three salient features in the Paris styles that cannot be disregarded, even thus early, for their repetition by one couturier after another foretells their sure importance as winter style features.

One of these is silk stitching used as a trimming. The Paris frocks and coats are fitted by many seams and darts, all stitched conspicuously in more or less fanciful effect. Pocket flaps, cuffs, revers—they are all garnished with silk stitching, and skirts and tunics have often a score or more of rows of this stitchery, done on the machine in effective chain stitch.

Alpaca is a surprise for the coming season. Both alpaca and mohair are being used by some of the couturiers in tailored frocks for day wear. Some of these models are appealingly chic, as, for instance, a sample frock of black twilled alpaca with a full overskirt pressed into little box plaits and falling almost to the edge of a plain foundation skirt. This frock has a button in back bodice with long, close sleeves and one of the enormous Japanese collars that are to be the rage without doubt. The bodice is loose, flat at back and front and plaited into the waist at the sides. It is attached with a stitched seam to the box plaited overskirt. Little tabs in the bodice extending down over the plaits to emphasize the long waisted effect. Under this moyen age bodice is a foundation fitted to the waist line and stiffened to insure trimness, though the outer button in back bodice is loose rather than close fitting.

Silks for formal frocks and evening frocks, of course, and Paris whispers that satins and satin surfaced silks will be most in favor. Of these a new silk called soiree is exquisitely beautiful in its lights and shades of color, a most enchanting silk for evening gowns of distinction. Worth and Jenny have brought out stunning gowns in velvet, the Jenny model a slip over the head affair distinctly novel, with bands of Belgian hare for trimming. Very distinguished is an afternoon gown by Premet made of navy blue charmeuse, with a good deal of black chantilly lace draped airily in the bodice and a big Japanese collar of navy blue mouseline draped around throat and shoulders. The combination of navy satin and black lace is particularly elegant and refined, and this gown of Premet is sure to make a decided hit with women of conservative taste. As brilliant as the Premet gown is, quiet and elegant is a Klein dance frock of gold colored silk voile and cream lace, with an underslip of flesh pink silk. The skirt is yards and yards wide, and at

HOMEMADE CARMELS.

No Reason Why One Should Not Be Successful With Them.

To make chocolate caramels take a quarter pound of grated chocolate, three ounces of butter, three-fourths pound of sugar, one gill of milk, two good dessert spoonfuls of syrup, a small dessert spoonful of glucose, half a tea-spoonful of vanilla essence. Put everything except the vanilla into a pan, and dissolve over a slow fire. Boil to 240 or 248 degrees, take off the fire and add the vanilla essence, and turn into a well greased tin. Mark with a knife when set and cut into squares and wrap each in wax paper.

The tin should be greased with oil or clarified butter—i. e., butter that has been put into a pan and heated and the scum taken off as it rises.

NEW NETHERS.

The Kind of Stockings That Go With Fall Shoes.

Whoever said that simple footwear was coming back into fashion was much mistaken. To be sure, certain styles of "fancy" shoes were marked down last winter, but other styles quite as elaborate took their place, and, as for stockings, never before have they been so varied and so far from plain or simple.

There is some thought that cotton stockings, colored ones at that, may be worn, for the price of silk stockings is soaring by the hour. But just at the moment silk stockings are made in hundreds of patterns.

Stripes form the most prominent stocking decoration or motive. Sometimes they are up and down stripes, sometimes stripes running around; sometimes they extend the whole length of the stocking, sometimes only halfway down or halfway up.

Ten to fifteen drops of vanilla can be added, if liked, before turning it on to the buttered plate.

Galatea For Frocks.

It is astonishing to note that galatea is being used in dresses for grown-ups. Hitherto it was confined to dresses for the schoolgirl and little tot, but at the present time it is also adapted for mother. It is shown in plain colors, such as blue, green, rose and white, and often trimmed with pique or a combining fabric. Other models are shown in striped effects, the foundation being white and the stripe in color. One particularly attractive dress was seen recently, the colors being blue and white. The arrangement of the stripes affords a novel detail. The odd flat collar with flat satin tie and deep cuffs are of white pique. The broad trimmed hat and high button boots are details of interest. A gown of this type is especially useful for morning and informal wear. Galatea is an excellent fabric for use in middie blouses and sports skirts, because it has sufficient body to avoid getting crumpled. It is also very suitable for simple sports suits, where the skirt is a two piece model and the coat a box cut, which is belted at the waist line. With appropriate hat and shoes a suit of this type proves an ideal and practical summer outfit. As a "tub" frock, that is so indispensable during the summer months, there is nothing to equal the shirt waist dress of galatea in plain or striped effect.

These Things Endure.

Some of the things that are not easily worn out by much using: The ground we walk on (but we can exhaust it by bad farming), the love we live by (but we can tarnish it), the mirror in which is reflected the true appearance of things.

"Didn' Mistoh Pinkly stand by you when de mixup took place?"

sometimes stripes running around; sometimes they extend the whole length of the stocking, sometimes only halfway down or halfway up.

There are checked stockings, too, and plaid ones, and there are stockings with odd and irregular designs. Then, too, regular clocking at the ankles, in colors or black on white, is a prominent feature of the summer stockings. Clocks are especially smart for wear with sport shoes, and they add to the effectiveness of low shoes worn with short skirts.

One black and white combination shows half inch stripes extending from the toe to the calf, ending there in arrowheads. Another shows a panel of stripes extending the full length of the stocking, about four inches across the front.

One of the newer sorts of evening stockings show beaded embroidery. This is in line with the vogue for beaded embroidery and sequins and spangles that is so strong for evening frocks.

Inserts of real lace, too, in fine silk stockings are used for evening. And another evening idea is a white silk stocking painted with flowers to match a painted kid slipper. This, of course, is so unusual that it may almost be considered a freak style. But it is interesting and is mentioned for what it is worth.

PUNISH TO EDUCATE.

Parents Should Never Act on Impulse of Moment.

Never punish a child on the impulse of the moment. The correcting of a little child is a very serious matter—a matter to be thought over earnestly and (if you are the kind that prays) even prayerfully. Always keep in mind that true punishment is not revenge; neither is it vindication nor retaliation—it is, or should be, nothing more or less than education. The time for punishment affords you an invaluable opportunity to teach a youngster but one of the many, many lessons of life it must learn.

Therefore it is extremely important that you do not punish a child when you are angry. In anger you will more than likely be unjust and also too severe. In anger you are in a fair way to lose your own respect and the child's.

See that the punishment fits the fault and that it has within it the power to teach the difference between right and wrong in the particular instance under consideration.

Cool Frock.

A frock made of white material dotted with blue spots and trimmed with blue ribbon is ideal for a summer afternoon.

Homemade Motor Veils.

Just a length of chiffon or similar weight veiling, twenty-seven inches or more in width and about one and one-half yards in length. Both ends are finished with a tiny hem. Insert a nine inch length of round elastic and attach at each end of the elastic a narrow ribbon string. The veil is adjusted by placing the elastic edge well down over the hat in front and holding the veil in place over the hat by tying the ribbon strings at the nape of the neck. Many of the bordered motor veils frequently sold so reasonably are long enough to make two of these handy requisites.

THE OLD PASTURE.

If the grass is thin in some places the disk harrow should be run over those places and some grass seed should be sown. In low places use a little red top and alsike clover along with the upland grasses. For uplands use twenty pounds of Kentucky blue grass, three pounds low white clover, one pound meadow fescue and three pounds of timothy. This mixture may be sown in September on newly plowed or disked land. It is well to follow with the smoothing harrow after sowing the seed.
Top dressing of pastures with some lime and commercial fertilizer rich in nitrogen is very advisable. This should be done on all parts of the pasture, particularly where the new seed is sown.

KEEPING MILK IN SUMMER.

Method of Preserving It Sweet Without an Ice Chest.

"Milk can be kept sweet in summer, even where there is no cellar or icebox in which to keep it," says J. B. Fitch, associate professor of dairy husbandry in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"Half of a barrel or a tub may be placed between the pump and the stock watering trough," explains Professor Fitch. "If there is much pumping to be done for other purposes, the milk will be cooled several times a day without extra trouble to the housewife.

"Cans containing the milk are set in the barrel or tub. Two holes, each about three inches in diameter, should be made in opposite sides of the barrel. These are connected with the pump spout and the watering trough by gas pipes and should be high enough to keep the jars surrounded by water without danger of its entering them. As the fresh water is pumped into the pipe leading to the milk barrel it passes around the milk jars and cools the milk.

"The milk jars should be covered, as should also the top of the barrel. Covering will keep in the cooler temperature as well as keep out the dust. Towels wrapped around each jar will aid in keeping the milk cooler. Changing the water at least three times a day will keep the milk sweet from twelve to twenty hours.

"To avoid lifting out the milk jars, if the water is to be completely changed, a cork may be fitted into a hole near the floor of the barrel. The drained off water may well be used for scrubbing the porches or watering the garden.

"While this plan is suited to a small quantity of milk, it is not advisable if there is much milk to be handled," says Mr. Fitch. "When handling large quantities of milk it is best to have a separator and sell the cream."

Farming as a Vocation.

The thousands who wish to take up farming as a vocation feel the appeal unusually strong just now owing to the large profits which are possible. These men see a good chance for success in the high rate of commodity prices, and undoubtedly many of them are wise enough to realize that land prices will never be lower. This is the additional incentive governing the large migration to the country districts.

Heads of families who have taken up this subject find ready encouragement in conditions as described. Many of them see that farm life offers them the only real chance for independence and comfort which they seek for their families. All such people, if they are intelligent observers, have learned that rural life is no longer isolated or irksome in a social sense. The steady improvement in transportation facilities in all parts of the country and the use of telephones and motors have brought farm families in touch with town life and the advantages which are common to other elements of society. Generally speaking, the country is much more enjoyable than ever before from the viewpoint of a farmer's family, while the financial aspect has made gains of equal importance.

Scientific Proof of Maxwell Fuel Economy

In a test made by David L. Gallup, M. E., Professor of Gas Engineering, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, a stock Maxwell Touring Car made from 23 to 33.7 miles per gallon of gasoline (Canadian or Imperial measure, 27.6 to 40.4 miles per gallon) at speeds ranging from 10 to 35 miles per hour. We reproduce Professor Gallup's letter concerning this test.

A small wire carelessly left in the trunk of a small tree may mean its death.

Remove the limb that blights before it decays. That may save the tree.

Remove the fruit on the apple trees. Very little, imperfect apple. The leaves will be so much the better.

Remove the plum stones, peach pits, etc., if you want them for seed purposes. Pick them in boxes of moist sawdust during time in October. Remove the sun scald on trees that have sufficient foliage to shade the trunk and main limbs. A spray of kerosene will enable you to remove the threatened parts in some cases and thus stop the danger of decay on the southwest side.

Alfalfa Crop Pays.

Why an acre of alfalfa is worth more in Minnesota than about $12 to cultivate it. 60 per cent of the fertilizer is returned to the soil when the crop of three tons will return to pigs as pasture when sold for 7 cents a pound. The yield if fed to steers at 6 cents and will bring $42.60. The yield fed to cows giving 100 lbs of butter fat at 30 cents a pound will bring $44.—Minnesota Sta-

Gentlemen:-

I beg leave to submit the enclosed blue print giving the results of an economy test made on a 1917 Stock Maxwell Touring Car, furnished by your Boston representatives.

The curve is self explanatory and needs no discussion other than the statement that the carburetor, which was stock, was adjusted to give the best combination of power, flexibility, speed and economy, for such conditions of touring as would ordinarily be encountered.

In tabular form the results (taken from the curve sheet) are as follows:

SPEED (Miles per hour)	ECONOMY (Miles per gallon)
10	33.7
15	32.7
20	31.2
25	29.8
30	26.1
35	23.0

(Respectfully submitted)

DLG/R

D. L. Gallup

Note that no unusual means were employed to get these results. The car used was taken from stock; the test was made with a full load, and with top and windshield up; the regular Maxwell carburetor was used.

Any Maxwell car is capable of giving this same economy in gasoline consumption.

Maxwell operating economy matches its economy in first cost, making it The World's Greatest Motor Car Value.

The 146th Battalion has arrived in England.

In one of the British Red Cross rest stations in France, 30,000 men were fed and 1,500 dressings done in a single day.

Do not miss Mrs. Henshaw's illustrated lecture (Hon.-Capt. C.E.F.) in town hall on Monday evening, October 23rd. Keep this date open, the lecturer is worth hearing.

The W.C.T.U. will hold their annual rummage sale on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 10th and 11th. Will the ladies of Napanee and vicinity kindly save their goods for this sale?

Mr. N. W. Rowell, K. C., Leader of the Opposition, on his return from the front, gives the following tribute to the work of the Red Cross: "I bring a message of cheer to those who have relatives at the front and who fear they may be wounded. I believe everything human skill can do, that human care and sympathy can provide, is being done and provided each day and each night throughout the year by the Army Medical Corps and the Red Cross. It is a perfect marvel of efficiency."

The Historical Society has been singularly successful in securing a number of eminent speakers for the coming season. The opening meeting will be held on Friday, October 27th, and the address will be given by Mr. W. F. Nickle, K.C., M.P. Mr. Nickle has just returned from an extended visit as a member of the Parliamentary Committee to all points of interest in Great Britain and upon the western front. The subject of his address will be "Some 1916 European Observations." With such a subject and such a speaker, the society is considering the advisability of securing the town hall for the occasion, as everyone will want to hear Mr. Nickle. Will the members and public generally, please note the date and make no other engagements for the evening of October 27th?

Mellow—Young.

A quiet and dignified wedding was solemnized by Rev. Arthur L. Phelps, at the home of Mr. John Young, Sandhurst, on Sept. 20th, when Ione Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Young, became the bride of Mr. Merton Mellow. The bride was attired in a delightfully becoming travelling suit and carried a sheaf of roses. Only the immediate relatives were present. A noteworthy feature was the presence of all four of the bride's grandparents. After the wedding breakfast, the happy couple left in the groom's car for Toronto, St. Catharines and other points in the Niagara Peninsula.

Give me your trade and let us build up a reliable poultry business in Napanee and not risk the uncertain, disappointing and delayed returns from the commission houses. Sorely Bereaved.

A sore affliction came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Egerton VanLoven on Friday, when their youngest son died after a very painful illness, of three weeks, aged 13 years and 6 months. Gerald was an exceedingly bright boy, and promising to develop into a manhood of more than average power. He was a general favorite with old and young, and the community sympathize deeply with his parents, also his two brothers, who are now serving their king and country, and his sister, Mrs. Sterk, of Moose Jaw. He had been greatly interested in the Boy Scout Movement and was very proficient in many departments of its work. He was patrol leader in the Second Napanee Troop. After his death, the little body was dressed in Scout uniform and placed in a couch casket, and the effect was that of sleep rather than death. The funeral was held from his parents' home on Sunday afternoon and was largely attended, both the council and members of Napanee troops of the Boy Scouts attending in a body, accompanying the remains to the vault. He had recently passed into the senior room of the public school and had also won a diploma in music, but he has been called to exercise his talents in a higher sphere of service.

"The real authors of all these benefits to our splendid troops are the men and women who supply the money to carry on this work." Such is the tribute of the British Red Cross Society in the last issue of "Our Work." The people of the Province of Ontario gave $1,574,000 last year. The campaign this year is fixed for October 19th.

UNION NOT A CHANGE IN THE ORGANIZATION OF THE LOCAL CHURCH

There is an unfortunate and somewhat widespread misapprehension regarding the effect on local congregations, of the proposed Union between Congregationalists, Methodists, and Presbyterians.

The following paragraphs, taken in large part from the Basis of Union,
should remove all doubts:

The section on Polity in the Basis
of Union begins with the statement
that in view of the Joint Committee
on Union "it is possible to provide for substantial local freedom and at the same time secure the benefits of
a strong connexional tie and co-operative efficiency." "Co-operative efficiency and local freedom" was the watchword of the Joint Committee on Union in outlining the organization of the United Church.

FIRST:—For charges formed subsequent to Union there will be

1. "The Session," consisting of the minister and a group of elders elected
by those in full church membership.
The rights and duties of the Session
are in general those of the Session in any Presbyterian church at the present time.

2. "The Committee of Stewards,"
corresponding exactly to the Board
of Managers in Presbyterian congregations.

3. "The Official Board," corresponding to the Quarterly Board in Methodist congregations, and consisting of
"the Session and Committee of Stewards, with representatives in full
church membership of such other departments of church work as may be agreed on by the General Council"
(the body corresponding to the Presbyterian General Assembly, or the Methodist General Conference).

The duties of the "Official Board"
are:

"(1) To secure contributions for
missionary and other general objects
of the church,

"(2) To select representatives, in full church membership, of the pastoral
charge to the Presbytery,

"(3) To submit to the pastoral
charge or local church for its consideration reports on life and work, including a full statement of receipts
and expenditures, and of indebtedness
and of estimates for the ensuing year,

"(4) To transmit from the pastoral charge, through the Presbytery, to the Settlement Committee representations concerning the pastoral relation.

SECOND: This threefold organization of the local congregation was considered by the Joint Committee on Union to be more effective than that existing in any of the uniting churches
at the present time, and will be
the form of organization for charges
to be constituted subsequent to the Union, but it is expressly declared
that charges existing previous to Union
"shall be entitled to continue the organization and practice enjoyed by them at the time of the Union, subject in general affairs to the legislation, principles and discipline of the United Church. Their representative in the next higher governing body
or court shall be chosen as at present." Charges existing at the time
of the Union MAY, however, if they
so desire, adopt at any time the plan
of organization prescribed for the
pastoral charges to be formed subse-

ent. Charges existing at the time
of the Union MAY, however, if they
so desire, adopt at any time the plan
of organization prescribed for the
pastoral charges to be formed subsequent to the Union. There is thus absolute local freedom to change or not to change.

So carefully does the Basis of Union safeguard local freedom, that a paragraph is added which states that
"churches, charges, circuits or congregations received subsequent to the Union into the United Church, with the approval of Presbyteries, shall be entitled if they so desire, to the privileges of the preceding section."

Surely, in the light of these quotations, it is utterly aside from the facts to speak or think of this Union
as involving the coercion of congregations. Congregations of the Presbyterian Church can go into the Union
without any change, even the most
trifling, in organization or practice,
but will have the advantage of serving in a wider fellowship of congregations and of uniting their gifts and
efforts in the more effective and comprehensive missionary policy of a United Church in which denominational rivalry has given way to common effort.
